The Meaning of Belief
Religion from an Atheist's Point of View
Tim Crane

“A New York Times Book Review Editors’ Choice
*A Publishers Weekly Best Book of the Year
*A Religion News Service “Fall Religion Reading: Heavy-Duty Edition” Selection

“[A] lucid and thoughtful book...In a spirit of reconciliation, Crane proposes to paint a more accurate picture of religion for his fellow unbelievers.”
—James Ryerson, New York Times Book Review

“[A] valuable and compact contribution to the dialogue between atheists and believers.”
—Publishers Weekly (starred review)

The Dawn of Christianity
People and Gods in a Time of Magic and Miracles
Robert Knapp

“This is a sound synthesis of historical data that, in broad strokes, paints the picture of how the nascent Christian movement influenced many different peoples and laid the foundations for Christianity to thrive globally.”
—Publishers Weekly

2017 28 color illus., 20 halftones, 7 maps, 1 table 320 pp. $29.95 • North America only cloth 9780674976467

Dispelling the Darkness
A Jesuit’s Quest for the Soul of Tibet
Donald S. Lopez Jr. • Thupten Jinpa

“We, and all who are interested in the Jesuits, the history of missions, Buddhism, Tibet, and the art of translation, are indebted to the authors of this sumptuous volume for translating the texts (selections from the monumental Inquiry and the whole of the more manageable Essence) into flowing English, and providing introductions both to the tragic story of Desideri and to his writings.”
—John Arnold, Church Times

The Idea of the Muslim World

A Global Intellectual History

Cemil Aydin

“We are in the hands of a master…By revealing how the racial, civilizational, and political biases that emerged in the nineteenth century shape contemporary visions of the Muslim world, within and beyond it.”

—Anver M. Emon and Daniel Steinmetz-Jenkins, Foreign Affairs

2017 304 pp. $29.95 • £23.95 cloth 9780674050372

The Crucible of Islam

G. W. Bowersock

“Part of the joy of reading this account of the background and emergence of early Islam is the knowledge that Bowersock has built it from solid stones, the weight of every one of which he has tested with his own critical mind. Secure that we are in the hands of a master, let us think about the implications of the substantial gains to scholarship that Bowersock has brought us in this compressed masterpiece.”

—Peter Brown, New York Review of Books

Before Orthodoxy

The Satanic Verses in Early Islam

Shahab Ahmed

“[Ahmed] offers the most systematic, critical study of an especially important tradition from early Islamic history, the so-called incident of the Satanic verses.”

—S. J. Shoemaker, Choice

“A valuable piece of in-depth scholarship on the formation of the early Islamic community and its discourses about Muslim beliefs and practices.”

—Publishers Weekly

City on a Hilltop

American Jews and the Israeli Settler Movement

Sara Yael Hirschhorn

“Hirschhorn has written an important book on Jewish American settlers in Israel.”

—J. Fischel, Choice

“In vivid, approachable, yet deeply informative prose, City on a Hilltop zeroes in on the diverse personalities behind the phenomenon of the ‘American settler’...But what is perhaps most fascinating in the work is Hirschhorn’s examination of the settlers’ motivations in leaving the comforts of the United States for the undeveloped and often hostile territory of post-1967 Greater Israel.”

—Amanda Borschel-Dan, Times of Israel

The Chance of Salvation
A History of Conversion in America
Lincoln A. Mullen

The United States has a long history of religious pluralism, and yet Americans have often thought that people’s faith determines their eternal destinies. The result is that Americans switch religions more often than any other nation. The Chance of Salvation traces the history of the distinctively American idea that religion is a matter of individual choice.

Clerical Households in Late Medieval Italy
Roisin Cossar

“This is a major contribution not only to the history of the late medieval family and the Italian church, but also to historical methodology. With her subtle analysis, Cossar persuades us that scholars must be attentive to archival documents as carefully crafted instruments of those who participated in their creation, rather than as transparent windows onto the past.”

The Avignon Papacy Contested
An Intellectual History from Dante to Catherine of Siena
Unn Falkeid

“Falkeid’s book is a welcome addition to the history of the political and intellectual climate of Europe in the fourteenth century.”
—New Criterion

“This book demonstrates quite well how the development of the Avignon papacy created a disconcerting yet fertile environment that forced many of the smartest people in Europe at the time to confront new issues and strike out in new directions. A fine piece of scholarship.”
—George W. Dameron, author of Florence and Its Church in the Age of Dante

Liberalism’s Religion
Cécile Laborde

“Cécile Laborde [shows]...against secular fundamentalism, that the state can, without ceasing to be liberal and losing its legitimacy, use religious ideas to justify its actions far beyond what existing theories of liberal neutrality suggest. But, without any contradiction, she also shows that religious freedom extends beyond the boundary that some impenitent secularists would like to set for it.”

When Free Exercise and Nonestablishment Conflict
Kent Greenawalt

“Greenawalt delivers just what he promises in this volume’s matter-of-fact title: a detailed examination of the various tensions between the free exercise and establishment clauses of the First Amendment. Chapters cover a wide range of issues, from religious practice within government institutions (namely the military and prisons) to various religious exemptions from laws concerning drug use, medical insurance, and zoning restrictions.”

Enlisting Faith
How the Military Chaplaincy Shaped Religion and State in Modern America
Ronit Y. Stahl

“Enlisting Faith tells a compelling story, showing how the military chaplaincy has entailed deep mutual engagement between government and the great diversity of American religious life. Stahl's excellent work is a must-read for anyone interested in religious freedom, separation (or not) of church and state, war, politics, and the many challenges of pluralism.”

Jewish Messiahs in a Christian Empire
A History of the Book of Zerubbabel
Martha Himmelfarb

“In the process of analyzing the most famous and detailed medieval Jewish apocalypse work and unraveling its many puzzles, Himmelfarb develops a striking new account of the history of Jewish messianism from the Bible to the Middle Ages. This book is groundbreaking and innovative, opening the way for a whole new era in the study of post-Christian Judaism.”

Afghanistan Rising
Islamic Law and Statecraft between the Ottoman and British Empires
Faiz Ahmed

“Afghanistan Rising uncovers the lost history behind the first constitution of Afghanistan and that country’s evolution into a modern Islamic state. Ahmed provides highly original insights into Muslim legal history, modernization in non-European contexts, and transnational Muslim networks. This is a well-crafted, theoretically rich, tightly argued, and rigorously executed book.”

Sea of the Caliphs
The Mediterranean in the Medieval Islamic World
Christophe Picard
Translated by Nicholas Elliott

“In Sea of the Caliphs, Picard shows that the Mediterranean, long considered marginal to Islam, even reduced to a clichéd playground for pirates, was in reality a major site for the development of Muslim societies between the seventh and twelfth centuries. He recasts the traditional view of Fernand Braudel by making Islam the dominant actor in this space for several centuries, not only as a military power but also as a commercial and intellectual force.”

Pious Fashion
How Muslim Women Dress
Elizabeth Bucar

“Pious Fashion is a look at contemporary dress and how it can help us see the ‘Muslim community’ as a vast array of individuals rather than an inscrutable monolith. Bucar disabuses readers of any preconceived ideas that women who adhere to an aesthetic of modesty are unfashionable or frumpy.”

The New Pakistani Middle Class
Ammara Maqsood

“A fascinating study of the rise of Pakistan’s new middle class, whose collective identity, Maqsood argues, ushers in a new kind of Islamic assertion. It is rare to see such a nuanced and thoroughly contextualized analysis of Muslim belonging and politics. A much-needed counterpart to what we know about the Indian middle class and its religiosity.”

Justinianic Mosaics of Hagia Sophia and Their Aftermath
Natalia B. Teteriatnikov
The architectural jewel of Constantinople is the church of Hagia Sophia (Holy Wisdom), constructed 532–537 ce. Although the edifice built by Justinian remains almost intact, only some of its original mosaics survive. In the first comprehensive study, Natalia Teteriatnikov describes the original mosaic program of the church and its restorations after the earthquake of 558.
